17—19 April 2012

This 2.5 day programme enables participants to develop internal consultancy skills that work.

You will learn why an internal consultancy approach is useful and an effective, simple model which you can use in day to day and project based HR activities. Truly partnering with the business (rather than just hand-hold them), and how to build your reputation as a credible and capable HR operator are core themes in this programme. Enhancing and refining your coaching skills as well as applying your business acumen to achieve results are also key components of this module.

This challenging and thought provoking programme will help you become an effective and credible internal consultant within your organisation.

21—23 August 2012

Programme Topics:

- What is internal consulting and how can it support your success?
- Partnering techniques
- Stakeholder management
- Building credibility
- Enhanced coaching and influencing skills
